

Daily Eagle

M. M. MURDOCK, Editor.
R. P. MURDOCK, Business Manager.
Published by the M. M. Murdock Co.,
Members of the American Newspaper
Publishers' Association and Associated Press.

Terms of Subscription.
DAILY, BY CARRIER, 10 CENTS PER WEEK.

(In Advance, postage prepaid.)
Daily, one copy, six months, $2.00
Daily, one copy, three months, $1.00
Daily, one copy, one month, .50
Three times a week, any day desired, .25
Two times a week, any day desired, .15
One time a week, any day desired, .10
SUNDAY, per year, $2.00

WEEKLY EAGLE.
One copy, one year, $5.00
Readers of the Eagle, when in New York City or Chicago, can send copies of the paper at the office of our agents at the address given above.
Eastern Business Office, 44 E. 42d St., New York City.
Western Business Office, 10-12 E. Third St., Chicago, Ill.
Book with Special Agency, sole agents for Foreign Advertising.

Harry Dunbar. Ralph Dunbar.

THE Dunbar Hand Bell Ringers AND Male Quartette Co.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH.

Monday, June 16th, 1902

Admission 50c. Tickets on sale at Pearce's jewelry store and Frazer's pharmacy, No. 117 East Douglas.

Mr. Lester Lonerger

In Shakespearean Pastoral Comedy

"As You Like It"

In the Open Air, Corner of Main and Lewis.

Wednesday and Thursday June 18 and 19

Tickets on sale at Howe's jewelry store.

Attend summer term Western School of Education and Oratory, 101 Sedgewick block.

The Chebotan Northern railroad at Anthony, Kan., will wait for the Missouri Pacific morning train from Wichita on Thursday morning, June 12, on account of the opening of the new road.

At the crossing of the K. C. M. & O. and Chebotan Northern railroad, one fare for the round trip from Anthony to Waldron—5 cents.

Attend Wichita Business College, West building, 10-11 North Market St. 51-ct

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

Has been used for over FIFTY YEARS BY MILLIONS OF MOTHERS FOR THEIR CHILDREN WHILE TEETHING, WITH PERFECT SUCCESS. IT SOOTHES THE CHILD, SOFTENS THE GUMS, ALLAYS ALL PAIN, CURES WIND COLIC and is the best remedy for DIARRHOEA. Sold by druggists in every part of the world. Be sure and get "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup" and take no other kind. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Notice to Contractors.

Proposals will be received by the Board of Education of the City of Kansas, until 6 o'clock p. m., Monday, June 23, 1902, for furnishing the materials and building and finishing a brick school house in the city of Caldwell, Kansas, according to the plans and specifications proposed by H. M. Hadley, architect, Topeka, Kan.

Plans are on file at the office of S. S. Clark, clerk of the board, Caldwell, and at the architect's office in Topeka, Kan. All bids must be accompanied with a certified check for $100.00, made payable to A. J. Johnston, treasurer of Board of Education, as a guarantee of good faith that the successful bidder will immediately enter into contract and furnish a good and satisfactory bond with twenty-four hours, or forfeit the amount of his bid.

All bids must be sealed and addressed to S. S. Clark, clerk of the board, and endorsed on the outside of the envelope the name of the bidder and the contents thereof.

The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

15-ct Clerk Board of Education.

Dissolution Notice.

The partnership heretofore existing between Walter M. Teter and S. G. Kimel, as The Wichita Trunk Factory, has this day been dissolved by mutual consent. Ziba C. Shibe, having purchased the interest of Walter M. Teter in said firm. The name, The Wichita Trunk Factory, will continue with S. G. Kimel and Ziba C. Shibe, as the partners therein and the business will continue at the old stand. Bills payable to the old firm may be collected by the new firm.

The new firm assumes bills (not paid) of the old firm as stated in the bill of sale. The new firm will pay all bills contracted after June 10, 1902.

S. G. KIMEL, WALTER M. TETER.

Dated June 10, 1902. 15-ct

Notice.

Parties wishing to rent a good dancing platform, 16x24 in sections, will call on Julius Zimmerman or B. Bulman, 117 North Market.

Dr. H. T. Sullivan

Son of the founder of Osteopathy, will open an office for general practice, Monday, June 16, Rooms 22-23-24, Stirling block, Wichita, Kansas. 15-ct

Sealed Bids.

Wichita, Kan. June 12, 1902.

Sealed bids will be received at this office until 2 o'clock, p. m., Monday, June 16, 1902, for the construction of the following permanent walk:

Contracts for all walks constructed under the supervision of an inspector will be required to give a maintenance bond in double the amount of contract for one year.

A 5-foot permanent walk on east side Main from Harry to Osceola.

A 4-foot walk on west side Waco, from Twelfth to Fourteenth.

A 4-foot walk on east side Waco, from Twelfth to Fourteenth.

All bids must be accompanied by a certified check for ten dollars as a guarantee of good faith.

Bidders must state price per square foot. Mayor and council reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

J. L. LELAND, City Clerk.

C. E. Miller, president of the St. Luke's hospital in the building of which the three were a part, was held for manslaughter by a magistrate. Judge Chas. Linn refused him a writ of habeas corpus but he was allowed his freedom under bond.

MARRIED IN CHURCH

Gibson - Sheppard Nuptials Celebrated Last Night.

MUSICAL CLUB SANG

Organ Played Softly During the Ceremony.

While the Wichita Musical club of thirty voices was softly humming the strains of Schubert's "Faithful and True" Mr. John Gibson and Miss Lila Sheppard were united in matrimony in the First Methodist church last evening at 7:30 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. N. Lynch, in the presence of 200 people.

The church was decorated for the wedding with large palms, which were placed inside the altar railing. The musical club was seated in the organ loft, and while Mrs. S. N. Noble played the pipe organ accompaniment the chorus, under the direction of Miss Jessie Clark, sang "Faithful and True" as the bride party entered the church. Down the north aisle came Ray Torrey and Otis Gove, ushers, Miss Mildred Hayworth and Miss Lila Maxwell, bridesmaids, and Miss Helen Taylor, the maid of honor. Following the maid of honor was the bride, leaning on her father's arm.

Down the south aisle came Dr. Murray Kirkwood, Clarence Reed, Dr. Frank Palmer and Everett Alexander, ushers, and Prof. E. C. Marshall, the best man, walking by the side of the bridegroom. In front of the altar the bride party was met by the officiating clergyman. While the ceremony was being performed the organ played softly and the musical club hummed the strains of the song. The ring ceremony of the Methodist church was used. After the wedding a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, 418 East Central avenue, from 8 to 9 and from 9 to 10 o'clock. The bride wore a dress of white Paris lawn, with white satin ribbons and real Valenciennes trimmings. All the bridesmaids wore Paris lawn and Miss Lila Maxwell's gown was trimmed in real lace. About 400 guests were invited to the reception. The house was trimmed in similar and sweet peas. The colors were pink and white, and these colors were followed in the refreshments. Ice cream, cake and mince were served. All the attendants at the wedding assisted at the reception, and Miss Bertha Kirkwood, Lillian Stubbs, Ethel Vandiver, Mary Warner and Letha Walters assisted in the dining room.

Out of town people at the wedding were Mrs. James Butler Hinkle, of Kansas City, a sister of the bride's mother; Mrs. William Clark of Kansas City; Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Gibson of El Dorado, the parents of the groom; Mr. Max Gibson of El Dorado, a brother of the groom, and Miss Gibson of Hamilton, Mo., a cousin of the groom.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Sheppard and is a graduate of the Wichita high school and the city normal. For the past seven years she has taught in the public schools. She occupies a prominent place in musical circles, and for years has been a member of the Musical club. She has also taken an active part in church work.

John Gibson has resided in this city about two years and is the proprietor of a hardware store on West Douglas avenue. For one year he was president of the Epworth League of the First Methodist church.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of J. C. Watson

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

AS YOU LIKE IT

Lester Lonerger and a competent company will give this great pastoral comedy at the grounds, corner of Lewis and Main streets, June 18 and 19. The seats are not on sale at Howe's jewelry store. The Kansas City Times says: "And the manner of its giving made for the highest praise, too. One must be lavish, even superlative, in its praise, because it was exceedingly well done. The spirit of the play caught to perfection; the surroundings were admirably arranged and the artistic art that was added to nature and it was very little—was so skilfully blended that there was none who could say, here let off the forest primeval, and here be the handiwork of man. Barring the light, which, even, was made to closely resemble the sunlight itself, there was no discernible dividing line. The entrance and the exits were excellently well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

"Mr. Lonerger deserves an unusual amount of praise for his success in the production, one could hardly call it staging of the act as it was so natural and so well managed, and the advancing forms came from the shadows in a fetching manner, only to pass again from the view into the darkness that surrounded the place where they played their parts. There was no need of the smoke curtain; the lights were dimly turned down when the act ended, and darkness took the place of the stage preceding. It was so natural that it was beyond the artistic; it was perfect."

Buds and Flowers of Home Life.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

MAKES AND KEEPS THE CHILDREN WELL AND STRONG.

Mothers Make It the Home Medicine For the Little Ones.

The children, God bless them, are the buds and flowers of our homes. Without their playful and hearty laughter, our homes would be desolate. They should ever be carefully tended in childhood and youth, if we expect them to ripen into perfect men and women.

In the home and at school the children have their times of ill-health and suffering. We often note the pallid and bloodless cheeks, heavy eyes, nervous movements and twitchings of limbs and muscles. They complain of headache, drowsiness, weariness, dyspepsia and indigestion. All such symptoms and ailments mean that the seeds of disease will have a fast and firm hold, unless proper measures are taken to restore a perfect condition of health.

Thousands of wise and prudent parents have made their children happy, healthy and vigorous by giving them nature's medicine, Paine's Celery Compound. In many severe and complicated cases Paine's Celery Compound has restored health when the little ones were given up by physicians.

If your dear ones are not as hearty, strong and rugged as they should be in June, try the health giving virtues of Paine's Celery Compound. It makes and keeps the children well.

green award is enough to put the most daring scenery designer to shame, and the music-Shakespeare's own verses—a detail that fills out what might be termed a midsummer night's dream.

"There is music galore from an orchestra which, hidden in the shrubbery, chips exactly like a congress of crickets, and, too, there are husky woodmen, who lean on their spears and chant of 'the green wood tree.' 'blow, blow, thou wintry wind,' and kindred cooling and apropos subjects.

"The wrestling bout in the first act is made a lively episode, with an exciting finish. All in all, there couldn't be a more delightful way to spend a stifling summer evening than in seeing 'As You Like It.' It combines the pleasure of a visit to the park and a trip to the theatre, with the added privilege of wearing shirt waists in which the audience can be comfortable and fashionable at one and the same time."

That Stamp Act.

One of the rosters for the traders' stamp, a female, called at the home of one of our merchants, who carries a very large stock of carpets. The roster said that these establishments carried a stock twice as large as any other establishment in the city and sold them at a great deal cheaper than any other establishment in town, and in addition to that they gave them stamps and all they had to do was to come to the store and they would give them goods for the stamps. One lady was down town trading this week and paying a bill, she displayed some trading stamps. The merchant asked her if she was in the stamp business. She said yes, she started in on it and became interested enough to go and see what she could get for her stamps and how many stamps it would take to get an article of any worth whatever. She said that she would not be bothered with them and as she talked she drew the stamps from her pocketbook and dropped them on the floor and they were swept into the alley. If the stamp deal is clean and straight, all that could be said about them would not hurt, but rather help the sale of them, and the merchants that went into the graft would not grow disturbed or restless because it was criticized.

THEY WERE CAUGHT

Mr. and Mrs. John Gibson did not leave town unserved.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gibson, who were married last night, left over the Santa Fe northbound train for some place, no one knows where. None of those invited to the wedding knew they were going away until nearly 10 o'clock. About twenty of the young people then went to the depot, and made their presence known by throwing rice at the bride. Some of the young men managed to get hold of a valise belonging to Mr. Gibson, and carried it through the train, asking the passengers if they knew to whom it belonged.

TO HAVE HEARING TODAY

Mrs. Thornton is Brought into Court But Chair is Empty.

Mrs. Thornton, who is charged in a state complaint with disturbing the peace, was arrested yesterday morning and brought into court. His honor being absent, Officer Voss told the woman to go back home and appear in court this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The complaint was sworn to by Mr. Morning, who did it, he says, for his wife's sake. Deputy Marshal Tom Voss says Mrs. Thornton is just a good old Irish woman, and once in a while is a little noisy.

BUYS 320 ACRES

E. Clark now Owns Sedgewick County Farm Land.

E. H. Anawalt has sold 320 acres nine miles northwest of the city to E. Clark of this city for $20,000, through the agency of J. W. Chenderson & Co. Mr. Clark recently sold his farm in Butler county, and his son, who has been living there, will move to the new Sedgewick county farm. Wheat and corn are raised on the land.

DUNBAR HAND BELL RINGERS

Will Give Entertainment Next Monday Night.

The Dunbar Hand Bell Ringers will give an entertainment in the First Methodist church Monday evening. Two of the troupe are Mr. Ralph and Mr. Harry Dunbar, whose home is in this city. The troupe consists of a male quartet and is equipped with 10 bells. It has made a good record at other places where it has given entertainments.

LAST JURY CASE

Is Heard and the Jurors for this Term Dismissed.

The case of the State against Gus Miller for the alleged violation of the 4-cent-hour labor law was continued in the district court yesterday until the next term of court. This was the last jury case of this term, and that body was discharged.

CHIEF YELLOW BULL

Indian Returns to Oklahoma From Wild West Show.

SQUAW IN HER BLANKET

Young Buck Tells of Old Chief's Life.

Chief Yellow Bull of the Ponca tribe of Indians passed through Wichita yesterday morning en route from Kansas City, where he was written up as follows:

"Chief Yellow Bull of the Ponca tribe of Indians was at the Union depot for a few hours between trains last night, returning to his home in White Eagle. With Yellow Bull was his wife and two small children, the latter just at the age when they are no longer called papooses. Alex Upshaw, a young buck of about 25 years, was in the party. He is well educated and speaks English fluently. Yellow Bull masters the language fairly well, having picked it during the last forty years.

The Indians have been with Bockskin Bill's wild west show and have toured the United States over doing stunts on horseback and exhibiting themselves as types of their tribe. The young man wears the regulation tribal costume, leggings, moccasins and beaded hat. His hair is coal black and about two feet in length. He wears it down his back in two braids. The squaw was wrapped in a fuzzy red blanket, which made every one who looked at her feel the sultry weather more.

Asked if she was with the blanket on the Indian for an interpretation, receiving which she shook her head negatively. "She dresses that way, summer and winter," explained young Upshaw. "And never seems to feel either the heat nor the cold. Our tribe, as a rule, is educated now, as the reservations are supplied with plenty of free public schools, and good teachers. Chief Yellow Bull could not stand to stay in the show business when summer came. He wants to get out among the birds and trees, where he was reared. He realizes that he has not many years left—he is over 80—and he has decided that he will spend them in peace and quiet."

The Indians attracted much attention at the